Professions

Just as waiter and waitress correspond to different genders, all professions in German have a masculine and feminine version. The feminine ones end with -in!

 der Kellner, die Kellnerin the waiter, the waitress

You are German student!

You are your profession! In English, we say I am an actor, but in German, you just say I am actor.

Jobs

 Ich bin Schauspieler.

I am an actor.

 Meine Mutter ist Professorin.

My mother is a professor.

Jobs

Remember how mein goes with masculine nouns and meine with feminine ones? It's the same with dein and deine.

 Dein Vater ist Lehrer.

Your father is a teacher.

Jobs

 Deine Mutter ist Ärztin.

Your mother is a doctor.

Shh! It's time to listen!

You will hear the sh sound whenever you see sch, or when a word begins with st- or sp-. Can you hear it?

schön schön, Schüler (as in "shoe")

später später, spielen
starts with "sh"

Stern Stern, Student
starts with "sh"
